SIMPLIFIED PROCEDURE FOR THE DESTRUCTION OF IP INFRINGING GOODS IN SMALL CONSIGNMENTS

Revamping Switzerland's Border Measures

Advisory Committee on Enforcement, 17th session Geneva, 4 to 6 February 2025

Tim Werner, Legal Adviser, Swiss Federal Institute of Intellectual Property

A growing problem...

Seizures of suspected counterfeit goods in Switzerland, 2016 – 2023

(source: Federal Office for Customs and Border Security)

Over 90 % of counterfeit goods arrive in small consignments

Image source: Keystone/DPA/Rolf Vennenbernd

Today's procedure is complicated and burdensome

 The right holder (RH) and the declarant (i.e. the person ordering the goods) are notified of the seizure at the same time

The declarant can object the destruction within 10 working days

 If the declarant objects the destruction, RH has to obtain provisional court measures within the same 10 working days

→ RH is forced to take all precautions immediately after being notified of the seizure

But: Objections occur in less than 5 % of cases

→ Significant and unnecessary burden to customs officials and RH

Simplified procedure for the destruction of IP infringing goods in small consignments

- Declarant is notified and has 10 working days to oppose the destruction
- RH is only notified if the declarant objects the destruction
- If the declarant explicitly consents to the destruction or remains silent, the goods are destroyed
- IPI carries out the administrative procedure

→ The simplified procedure is optional: Right holders can still opt for the ordinary procedure

Key Differences

- RH will only be notified of the detention if the declarant objects the destruction
- If there is no objection, any potential damage claims by the RH will be explicitly excluded by law
- In addition, the proposal allows for the possibility that the administrative procedure following the detention of small consignments may be processed by the IPI instead of the Federal Office of Customs and Border Security (FOCBS).

A new role for the Swiss IP Office

- The administrative procedure following the detention of small parcels will be carried out by the IPI instead of the Federal Office for Customs and Border Security.
- Reason: Unburden the customs authorities by transferring administrative tasks to the competent Federal Offices.
  - → The idea is to enable the customs officials to focus more on inspections.

Outsourcing storage and destruction

Eidgenössisches Institut für Geistiges Eigentum Institut Fédéral de la Propriété Intellectuelle Istituto Federale della Proprietà Intellettuale Swiss Federal Institute of Intellectual Property

State of play – Next steps

- The Council of States discussed the bill on 12 December 2023 and adopted it unanimously, followed by the National Council that adopted it on 19 December 2023
  - > parliamentary debate on the revision of the law is concluded
- The internal implementation and revision of the relevant ordinances are to follow
- The initiative is planned to enter into force on July 1, 2025

DPMA cooperates

effectively with intellectual property offices in other countries as well as European and international Authorities

International: EUIPO +
Observatory,
EPO, WIPO, EU-KOM,
national Offices, etc.

Customs, Enforcement authorities, Police, Marketsurveillance Agencies, etc.

Customs administrations are in the frontline to enforce intellectual property rights at the borders.

In order to effectively carry out their task, customs need the active engagement of the right-holders themselves.

Right holders therefore can ask the customs authorities to detain goods suspected of infringing their IPR.

In order to do so, the right holders have to lodge an application for action (AFA) with the competent customs department requesting them to take action.

Regulation (EU) No. 608/2013

- Except in the case of the ex officio procedure, customs enforcement of an IPR may be carried out only where an AFA has been granted.
- Whoever is entitled to institute court proceedings to determine whether an intellectual property right has been infringed can submit an application
- In all cases it is, in principle, possible to settle a case without instituting civil proceedings.

Regulation (EU) No. 608/2013

- The Regulation applies to goods that are under customs supervision or in a free zone. Exceptions:
  - parallel imports and production over-runs,
  - goods that have been released for free circulation pursuant to the "end-use" regime;
  - non-commercial goods that are being transported in travellers' private luggage

AFAs can be either national or (EU) Union applications.

A national application is an application requesting the authorities of a Member State to take action against infringements of a specified IPR in that Member State only.

A Union application requests the customs authorities of one or more Member States to take action in their respective jurisdictions against infringements of a specified IPR.

Right holders wishing to submit an AFA should connect to the IPEP Trader Portal for COPIS or to the national portal in the following Member States of the EU:

- Germany
- Italy
- Spain

In Germany any application for action (AFA) can and must be filed online with the Central Office for the Protection of Industrial Property (ZGR) of German Customs.

2023 detentions statistics (Source: Zentralstelle Gewerblicher Rechtschutz, ZGR, 2023)

- No significant increase in detentions was identified for the period 2021-2023 in Germany.
- Number of detentions has decreased in the time period from 2021-2023, both in terms of the quantity and value of the goods seized.
- Ninety-five percent of the detentions concern trademarks and designs, and detentions involving copyright infringement account for less than two percent.
- Postal traffic and air traffic are the most relevant means of transportation for counterfeit goods.

Lessons learned

Future actions should continue to concentrate on the following key areas:

1. Increasing education, awareness and building respect for IP.

Working with various private and public sector partners to build respect for IP and to encourage consumers to choose legitimate options over illegal sources.

Lessons learned

2. Fostering the knowledge about the legal framework

Increasing the understanding of how the court system and the AFA system works and what elements make for a successful outcome

Helping businesses and individuals to enforce their IP rights in a way that is cost effective. Raising awareness of the IP Mediation Services
